Tena koutou nga matua nga whaea me nga whanau katoa,

School immunisations programme will be carried out in our school on Tuesday 30th June - next week. This is for those students that have returned their consent forms. If you would like your child to be immunised then please return the immunisation form before this date.

A reminder that if your child is sick, then please keep them at home. However, if they are well then please send them to school as regular attendance is extremely important. Students that have regular attendance make the best progress!! Please ensure our students get enough sleep. We note that on a Monday we have very tired students who struggle to learn throughout the day.

Although we are at level 1, please continue to drop and collect your students at the school bus bay. This is a safety requirement. Alternatively they can be dropped off by the preschool.

Ruma Tupu:

Tupu tuakana are looking into probability mathematics this week and will be playing and designing fair and unfair games of chance. What is the probability of getting tails when you flip a coin? Does the likelihood of getting tails change as you continue to flip the coin or is there the same for every flip?

Puawai:

Welcome to week 11. It was lovely to hear our students singing waiata with Nanny Wye last week. A great start to Kapa Haka. We are all looking forward to Kapa Haka again this week. This week we are finishing off our assessments and will be presenting our Novel Quests and Inquiry. Below are slides taken from Puawai students' Novel Quests and Short Stories presentations.

Understanding.

I think the author is wrong about the villagers not being able to make it through the storm. This is because they found some broken tree branches then they started to look around which is when they found a nearby abandoned island.

Introduction Presentation by: Mauri Pou

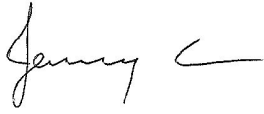

I am doing a Novel Quest called the Boy in the Striped Pajamas. The author of this story is John Boyne who is born on April 30, 1971. The story was written in January 5th, 2006, and the movie was made in 2008. This story is about a boy called Bruno and his family during WW2. They are sent to a house called Out-With where. It is next to an concentration camp. Bruno's father Ralf, one of the commandants of the Nazi, must work at the concentration camp full of Jews. But they don't know when they are going back to Berlin, where Bruno calls home. Bruno's parents say that they are there for the "Foreseeable Future". Bruno isn't happy about moving to that cold nasty home called Out-With and chooses to argue with his mother. Then he goes to his room to sulk and help Maria pack all of his stuff. When Bruno sees his new home he is not impressed at all. But... he met someone called Shmuel and befriends him. Shmuel is known as "The Boy in the Striped Pajamas".
